Message

In the past three years, Uttar Pradesh has paced ahead on the path of development. The state government is making sustained efforts to provide various facilities to the people of the state, and to achieve these, the state government, like in previous years, has come out with an agenda of development.

Working seriously on previous agenda of development has brought out encouraging results and in the Agenda for Development for 2015-16, agriculture, energy, creation of infrastructure facilities, development of human resources, health and medicare, urban development, rural development, social security for weaker sections, labour and new efforts for making administration more responsive, effective and transparent have been assimilated.

Despite resource crunch, the state government has taken the decision for the execution of the Lucknow Metro Rail Project and work has already started on this project. In the same way, to ensure fast road transport, work has started on the Agra-Lucknow Express-Way and all district headquarters are being four-laned. At present many projects are underway which will prove to be milestones in development of the state and would play a major role in ushering in prosperity.

To make the working of the government more transparent and improved, the state government is assimilating information technology (IT) in a big way and many public oriented works have now been made online.

To benefit the weaker and marginalized sections of the society, the Samajwadi Pensions Scheme has been rolled out. '108' Samajwadi Health Scheme, '102' National Ambulance Service and '1090' Women power Line are some successful schemes which are being talked about all over the country.

The state government has stitched up schemes in a transparent manner which will benefit the weaker sections, women, children, youth and farmers.

I hope that all departments would work dedicatedly and honestly to make the Development Agenda for the year 2015-16 successful.

Message

It is a matter of great pleasure that heartening results have come out of the work done through the Development Agenda for the year 2014-15. On the same lines, to ensure social and economic development of the state and to ensure that the benefits of the high-priority schemes and projects of various departments are accrued to the people of the state, an agenda for Development of Uttar Pradesh has been chalked out for the year 2015-16.

For comprehensive development of the state, development agenda of various departments has been divided in various heads like agriculture, energy, creating of infrastructure facilities, human resource development, health and medical, urban and rural development. With these, innovative efforts have been made to make the administrative systems, more accountable, responsive, effective and for social security and labour for the weaker sections of the society.

In this year's development agenda for improvement of educational quality a mechanism of review and monitoring, facility of laboratory and online journals for promotion of research works, strengthening of laboratories of food security and drug administration, NABL accreditation of labs and analysis of food items facility for the common people, subsidized solar packs for urban poor and arrangement of solar street lights for public places under the gram panchayat's, establishing of the high-level institutes for cancer treatment, strengthening and maintenance of the car road network, providing residential facility for urban poor and providing tablets for village level employees are some other salient features included in the development Agenda.

I am not only hopeful but confident that all administrative departments will provide for complete adherence to the Development Agenda for the year 2015-16 and contribute their bit to the development of the state.

-Shri Alok Ranjan

Chief Secretary, Uttar Pradesh
